(Boston, MA – May 19, 2017) Holly Polglase, a products liability attorney and shareholder at Hermes Netburn, recently spoke at a Career Choice seminar for the American Bar Association. The Career Choice Series is designed to help attorneys choose career paths. Holly's presentation covered the area of product liability defense and was co-presented with attorneys H. Grant Law and Liz Stone from San Francisco legal firms. The speakers explored what it is like to practice in the area of product liability defense, shared valuable insights and also gave a glimpse into the typical day in this field.

In her practice, Holly acts as lead counsel in the defense and trial of complex product liability, pharmaceutical, medical device, toxic tort, asbestos, general liability and commercial matters. With over twenty-five years of experience, she works as national and regional counsel for major national and multi-national corporations.
