OVERVIEW

The experienced and hard-working attorneys in our Insurance Law practice group handle all aspects of evaluating and litigating insurance claims of any size to find the solution that works best for our clients.

Hermes, Netburn, O'Connor & Spearing, P.C. is panel counsel to some of the world's largest insurance companies. Insurers trust our lawyers to defend all manner of underlying cases, such as:

- construction defect cases
- complex product liability
- environmental liability
- asbestos
- latex/allergy sensitivity
- multiple chemical sensitivity
- toxic mold
- personal injury
- bodily injury
- property damage
- and many others

Additionally, we represent businesses and financial institutions in connection with general premises liability, construction and Uniform Commercial Code-related claims and lawsuits. We defend professionals and corporate directors and officers accused of negligence or wrongdoing.

Hermes Netburn attorneys know that their insurance clients need experienced litigators who are capable of quickly evaluating and resolving claims against them. We work closely with our insurance clients to make sure these claims resolve in the manner best suited to their interests. Our combined decades of experience in both litigating and settling insurance claims allows us to consistently get the best results for our clients.

Hermes Netburn is capable of handling claims of any size, from the smallest negligence claim to massive class action claims. Our facilities and systems can and have accommodated large document cases and discovery disputes that have spanned years. We have the facilities to accommodate witness preparation and depositions. At Hermes, Netburn, O'Connor &

Spearing, P.C., the objective of our clients dictates how we handle our mission, but our goal is always superior results.
