OVERVIEW

Hermes Netburn attorneys are dedicated to defending their clients from any and all claims of professional misconduct.

Professionals, such as lawyers, doctors or architects, must legally adhere to specific standards of professional conduct in their fields. The lawyers at Hermes, Netburn, O'Connor & Spearing, P.C. represent professional service firms, law firms, corporate general counsel and individual professionals in a wide range of complex negligence and malpractice actions related to professional liability and disciplinary matters.

We protect professionals against claims related to the standards associated with professional conduct and ethics, as well as allegations of negligence, breach of fiduciary duty or breach of contract. We also counsel clients regarding compliance programs aimed at avoiding professional liability claims.

Hermes Netburn has a longstanding reputation for achieving positive results for our clients, either before or at trial. We will work hard to get any professional misconduct claims dismissed before trial becomes necessary. Should trial become necessary, our litigation skill and experience allow us to present the best case for our clients. We will do everything in our ability to protect our client's confidential information, reputation and business.
